“ I had a chance to work with Jerry from October 1975 to June 1976. I was more his personal translator but at times carried mission impossible for Jerry regarding refugee resettlement. He was a great guy who love the Hmong people. We all owed him a great deal. Without his fight and sacrifice, Hmong wouldn't have a chance to be here. I last saw him when he visited me in Dallas in 1981. His brother Jack, that time Professor in UT Austin, also joined us for 2 days and 2 nights. The two brothers stayed up late talking about digging gold in Montana after Jerry retired from his assignment in Thailand. But sad news come after a few months. He never make it back. He left me lots of pictures he took from all the refugee camps in Thailand. I never know why but I assume Jerry had a purpose for that. Jerry was always a visionary person who carried things secretly but meaningful for others. We will miss him, especially me "Little bare foot" as he called me.
